International Conference: “Business resilience”

The Centre for Business & Liability welcomes you to its international conference, which will take place in Leiden (The Netherlands) on 25-26 January 2018.

Business resilience has emerged as a response to the decreasing lifespan of businesses and the inability of key stakeholders to adequately address issues of preparedness and responsiveness to incremental change and sudden business disruptions. This international conference explores drivers of change and responsiveness to them from three perspectives:

- Technology as driver of change to the organisation and corporate governance of businesses.
- Long-term value creation as driver of change in capital markets, corporate governance and businesses.
- Directors’ duties and liabilities as drivers of change in directors’ willingness to take risks.

The conference is one of its kind to provide cross-disciplinary and cross-border approach to business resilience and is powered by the Company Law Department and the Department of Business Studies at Leiden University.
